

Christina Walker

EMMA

When two known gangsters are found dead in a New York library the police write it off as gang retaliation. Agent Richard Bradford has a different idea. A mysterious woman has been seen in the vicinity and it's not the first time Richard crossed path with her, always leaving dead bodies in her wake. And somehow all deserved their early departure. A vigilante on the loose or a contract killer?

Meanwhile in a town in sunny California a teenager feels threatened by her stepfather, a visiting journalist listens to as much small-town gossip as possible, and a businessman prepares for the deal of his life.

As Bradford follows a lead to the Golden State, history seems to repeat itself.